Yearbook

CATCH OF YEAR was made by Jim Northrup, high above nine-foot fence of left field at Tiger Stadium in July to rob Baltimore's Dave Johnson of home run, then whip ball to Ed Brinkman and on to Paul Jata to double Tom Shopay off first base. Sensational catch-and-relay provided last two outs of 2-0 victory for Tigers and Mickey Lolich before 40,999 appreciative fans and millions on television.

Ed Brinkman and Billy Martin toast Tigers' division title trophy

A Year of Thrills, Glory in Tigerland

Exciting is the word for the Tigers' campaign of 1972, leading to high hopes for 1973.

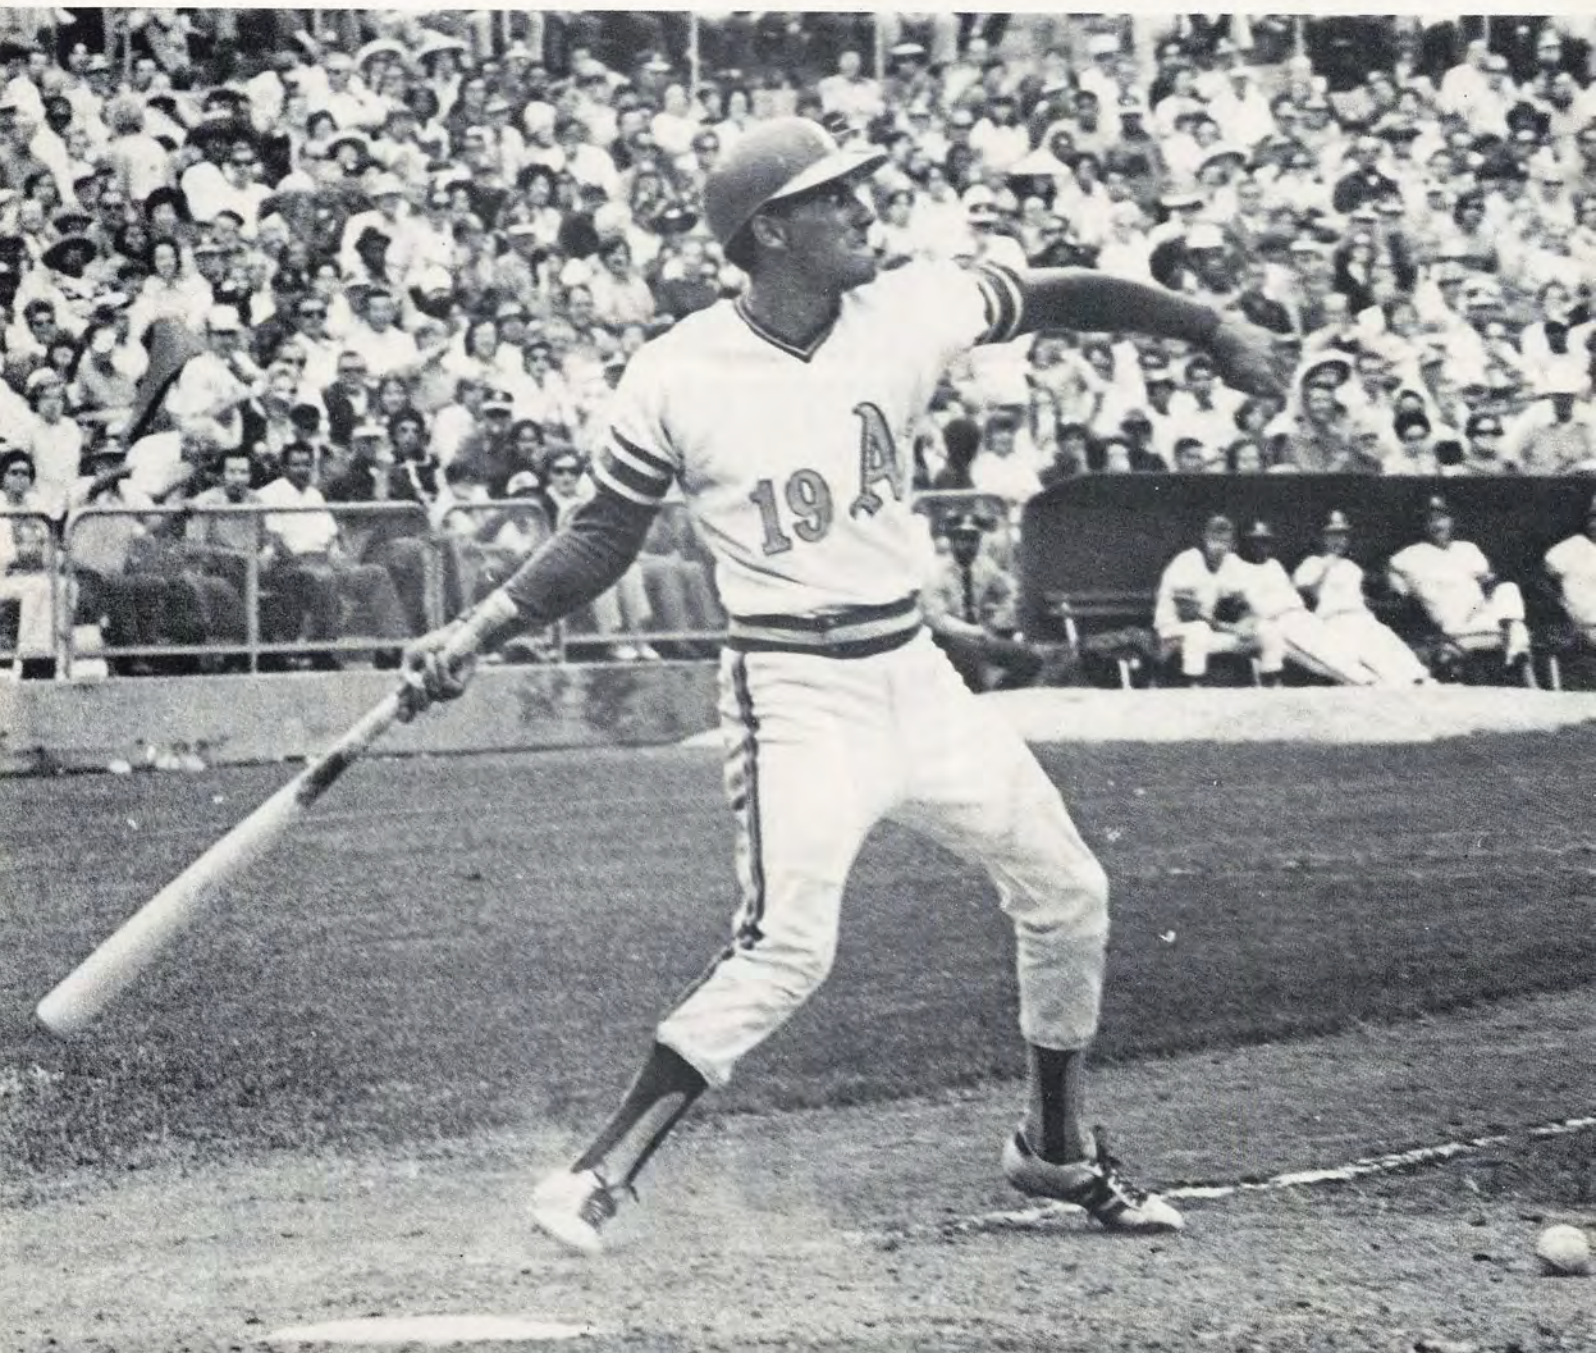

With surprisingly strong pitching and the best defense in the major leagues, they pounded their way to the championship of the American League East on the next-to-last day of the season in a showdown series with the Boston Red Sox, then fought the Oakland A's to the limit before bowing in the fifth and final game of the championship series, after which the A's went on to down the Cincinnati Reds in the World Series.

Under the driving direction of Billy Martin, the Tigers provided Detroit fans with some of the most spirited action they have ever witnessed — including some loud arguments, a few fierce fights, hundreds of scintillating plays and enough thrills for a lifetime.

When it all came to an end in October, more than two million fans had passed through the turnstiles at Tiger Stadium, ready to acclaim 1972 one of the most exciting in the club's history but looking forward to 1973 with expectations of another bruising battle.

The most controversial play of the entire 1972 baseball season came in the second game of the Tiger-A's championship series at Oakland when Bert Campaneris, A's shortstop, was hit on the foot by one of Lerrin LeGrow's pitches. The enraged Campaneris (below) hurled his bat at the Tiger right-hander, shown ducking the flying timber at right. Both were ejected, after which Campaneris was fined and suspended for the rest of the playoffs as well as the start of 1973.

A Race For Fans' Delight

The Great Race!

That's what they called it in the American League East in 1972 and that's the way the Tigers will remember it.

First there were four — Detroit, Boston, Baltimore and New York — all in the battle for the division title.

Then there were three, then only two: the Tigers and the Red Sox in the final series of the season, with the Tigers needing two out of three to nail down the championship.

So that's what they did, two in a row with the clincher in the next-to-last game of an exciting season, a 3-1 decision making special heroes out of Al Kaline, Dick McAuliffe and Woodie Fryman before 54,079 hysterical fans who almost dismantled Tiger Stadium in their post-game frenzy.

After that, the hard-fought close playoffs with the Oakland A's and more thrills as the gallant Tigers battled to the final out of the last possible game before bowing by one run to the eventual World Champions.

It all began back in spring training, perhaps the best for the Tigers in their history as seven of them topped .300 at the plate and the pitchers showed signs of being long on quality if short on depth.

Enthused by spring success, Manager Bill Martin insisted: "This team can win it all."

Then came the players' strike, chopping off the end of the spring training and delaying the start of the regular season.

It was like the falling of an iron curtain. Martin squirmed as the Tigers resumed action far below their spring form at the plate and struggled to a season-ending team average of .273, eighth in the AL.

But the pitching became strong and the defense was the finest in the major leagues. That was the key to success in a tight race marked by close games, stirring arguments and some fierce fights.

As low as fourth place in mid-September, the Tigers won 13 of their next 18 games to apply the clincher in their Oct. 3 thriller with Boston and finished the regular season with a record of 86-70, a half-game ahead of Boston, five above Baltimore and 6½ in front of New York.

The "no-star" Tigers they were called by some — an eminently unfair label in the eyes of the Tigers. Heroes aplenty made possible as thrilling a season as their loyal fans could hope for.

Three were late-season valuable additions in deals arranged by Jim Campbell, the Tigers' canny front office chief.

Woodie Fryman came from the Phillies to win 10 games in two months.

Duke Sims was purchased from the Dodgers to hit .316 and supply key hits in a number of games.

Frank Howard, bought from the Rangers, lent more threat at the plate and morale in the dugout.

But figures more familiar to Tiger fans wrote some stirring headlines, too.

Al Kaline, playing as well during the final weeks as he ever did in his brilliant career, hit .313 and strengthened his place among all-time Tiger leaders.

Ed Brinkman set five major league fielding records for shortstops and was dubbed "Tiger of the Year."

Mickey Lolich won 22 games for a two-year total of 47 and fanned 250 to take the career strikeout lead among active moundsmen of the American League.

Heroes all, along with several others, to the two million fans who saw them at Tiger Stadium in regular season and playoff action.

Happiness Is Winning

When the Tigers nailed down the American League East crown, there was Owner John E. Fetzer (above left) in an unusual clubhouse visit with congratulations and enjoying the champagne splashing with Aurelio Rodriguez and Billy Martin.

That's U.S. Senator Robert Griffin in the center. Below: the play which prompted this hilarity—Dick McAuliffe scoring the clinching run while Boston Red Sox players scatter all around the landscape in a vain attempt to halt him.

Frank Howard leads cheers, then gets doused with champagne.

All is joy for Ed Brinkman above and Willie Horton below in clubhouse celebration.

Call to Arms

Many things can stir up fights in baseball — like this episode. Milwaukee's Billy Conigliaro doesn't like Phil Meeler's tag on a bunt play, so he charges the Tiger hurler, blows are struck and the mob gathers, at right. Conigliaro was banished. Below: Billy Martin argues (left) with Umpire Larry Napp over a decision at second base, obviously loses as he takes a healthy kick at the infield dirt, a traditional gesture in like situations.

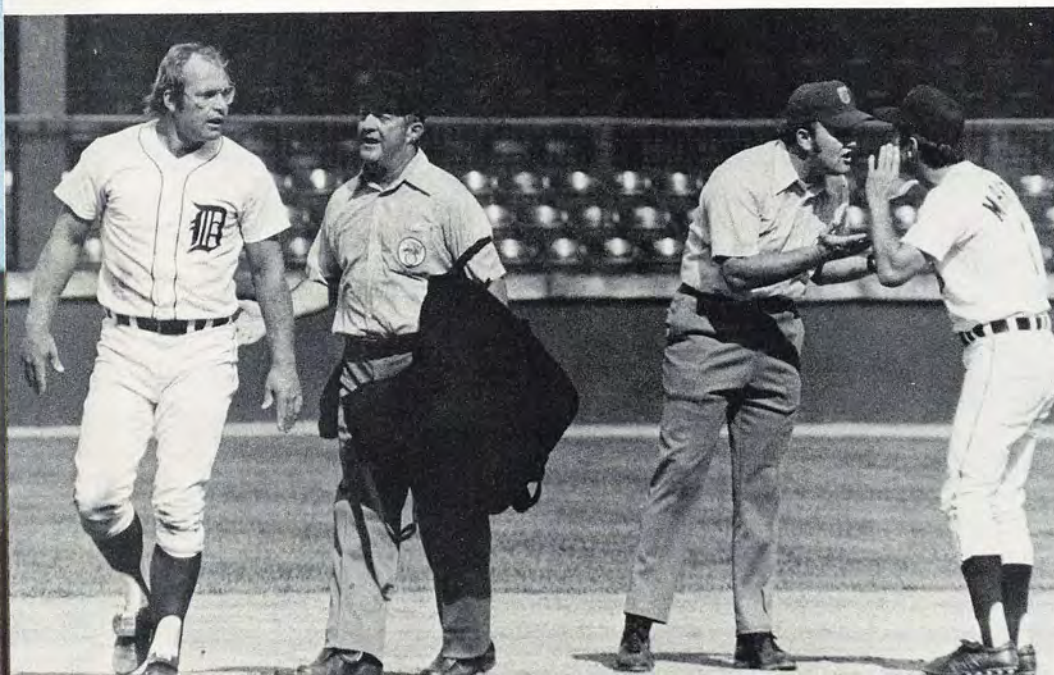

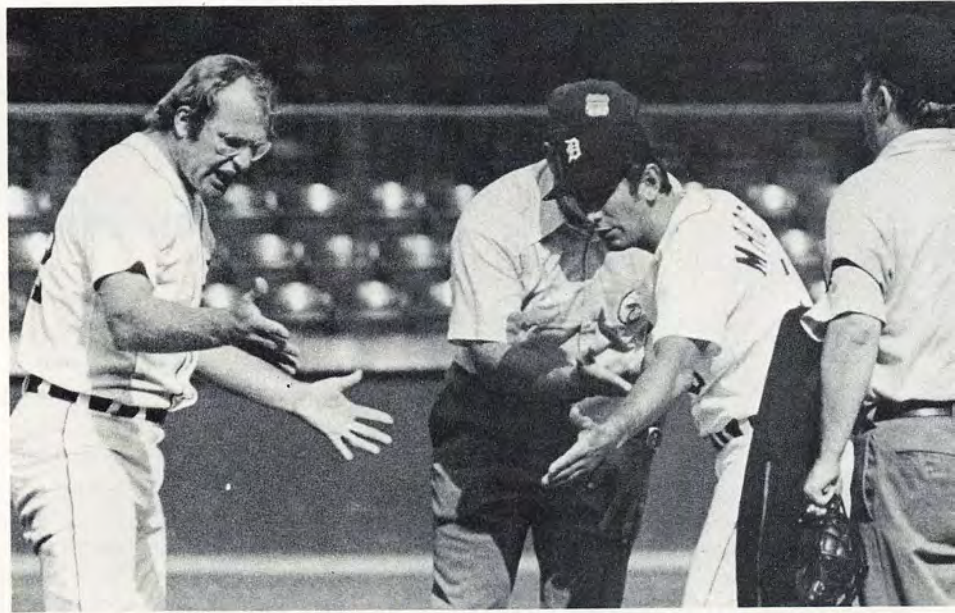

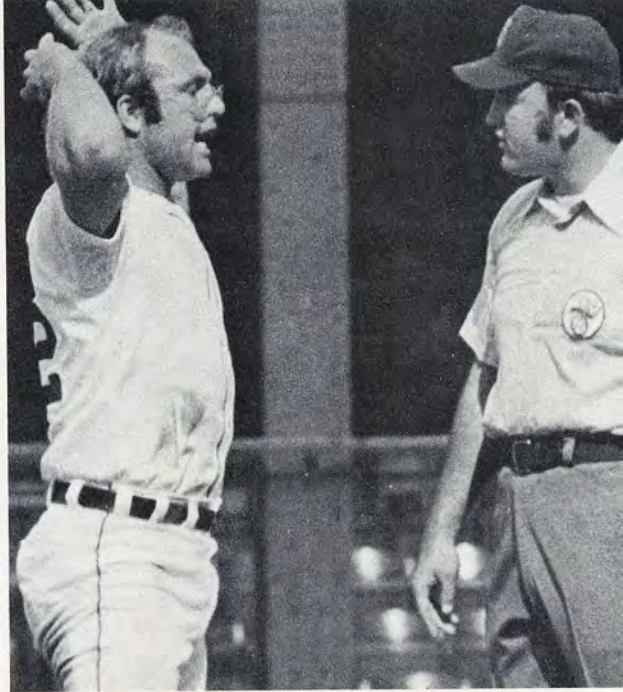

The Action Is Hot

This Tiger Stadium battle started when a pitch by Bill Slayback, Tiger rookie, sailed close to the A's Angel Mangual. Slayback made for the plate, thinking a runner would try score; Mangual took after him and they wrestled to the ground as Irv Noren and Joe Rudi rushed in.

Below: Mangual shoves Slayback's face into the dirt as Manager Billy Martin leads the Tigers to his defense. A battle royal ensued after which both principals were ejected from the game.

The Duke Sizzles

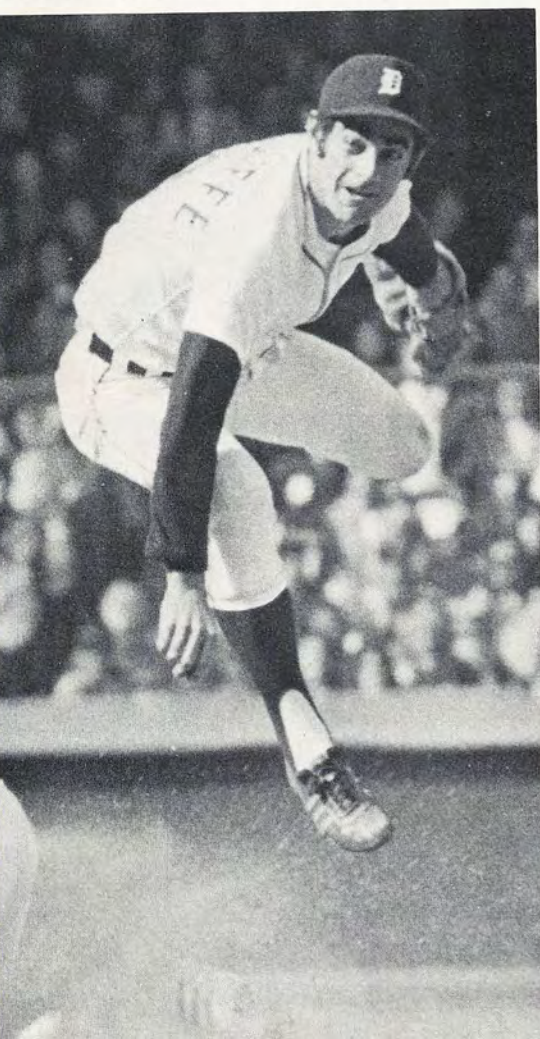

This could be called the anatomy of a good argument at second base. Colorful Duke Sims comes up fussing with Umpire Larry Barnett, top left, while Angels' Sandy Alomar could care less. Then it's Sims and Barnett, top right, face-to-face before Billy Martin joins the debate, center left. Next, Chief Umpire Nestor Chylak heaves into view, center right, to steer Sims away, left. Martin and Barnett don't quit easily, though.

It Can Be Rugged

Graceful Does It

Agility-plus is the word for the action illustrated at the left. Top, Al Kaline launches a slide for the plate and, below, Dick McAuliffe goes skyward to evade runner in a double play. Above, Tom Timmerman defines "bailing out" on a too-close-for-comfort pitch and, below, Bill Freehan gives it everything attempting to score on the A's Dave Duncan.

*The geographic area of this game is Michigan, but anyone may participate by mailing a blank to WJR, Box #7391, Detroit. The minimum number of prizes available depends on the number of Tiger homers. The game runs during the entire Tiger baseball season. Approximately 800 Marathon service stations in Michigan will be participating in the game.

Tigers and Fans Find Time for Fun, Games

Winning a World Championship, as the Tigers did in 1968 and as they hope to do each year, is the most important thing in a player's life. But there are lighter moments for a Tiger and for his family — such as the annual Father-Son Game in which Dad cuts it up with Son and Mama takes a bow with Daughter. That's one of the nonsense stunts from one of the games above, with Ike Brown taking a swipe at an over-ripe kind of "baseball."

There are other such happenings at Tiger Stadium every year — happenings which make true the familiar saying: "Tiger Stadium, where the name of the game is fun."

If you haven't experienced it, just ask the nearest fan. It might be a youngster with a banner reading: "Who needs money? We have Cash." It could be a pretty girl with a six-foot stuffed tiger toy. Perhaps it is a nun in a group out for an afternoon of relaxation. Some wear whiskers and mod hair. Others are straight as arrows.

What they all have in common is a love for the game which still is truly No. 1.

They call it the world's biggest baseball but it's really 15,000-gallon butane tank of Marathon Oil Co., a Tiger radio sponsor, located on I-75 approaching Detroit from south. Three painters used four days, 24 gallons of paint to decorate 55-foot sphere.

The Best Fans

Tiger fans are proud of their team, as the banner above so prominently proclaims. And the Tigers are just as proud of the fans they consider the greatest in the world of sports. On these two pages are some of the faces to be seen among the multitudes who every year shove Tiger Stadium attendance to the top bracket and who last year topped the two million mark for regular season and playoff play.

Tigers Tops In Talent; Here They Are for '73

It has been said that baseball is not a team sport, but a collection of individual efforts in which a team wins when everyone delivers his very best performance.

It also has been pointed out that there are no standard specifications for a ballplayer.

Some are large, some small. Some run fast, some are slow. Some throw hard, some don't. Some hit the ball over the roof, some nub out singles. Some come from city sandlots, some from the country. Some have college degrees, some barely finish high school.

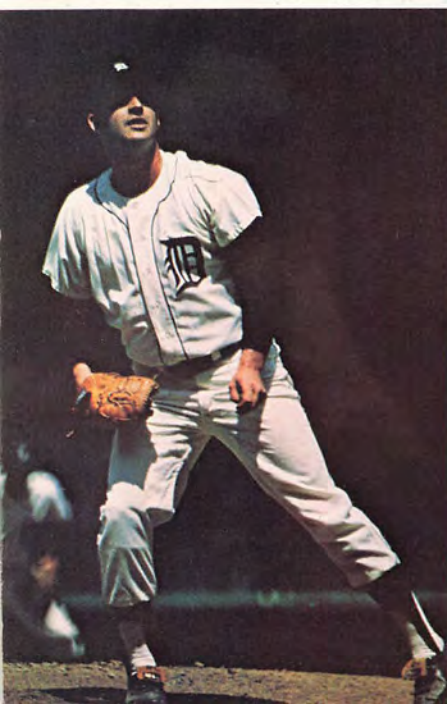

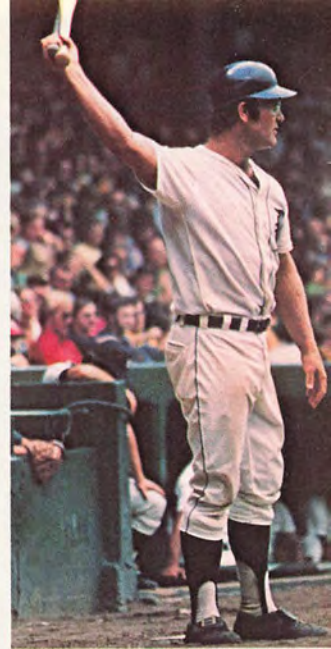

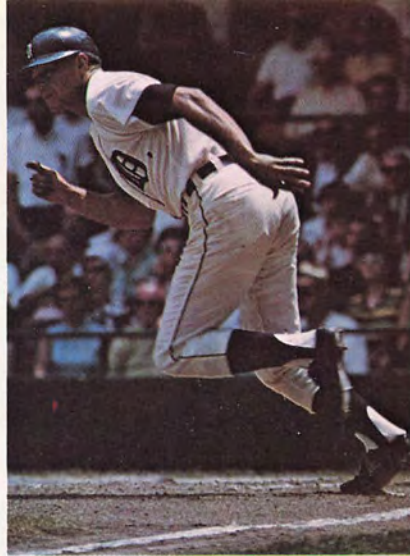

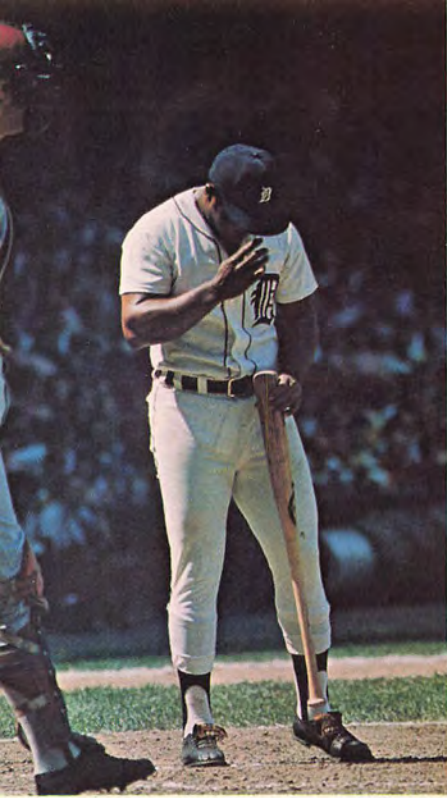

But, put them altogether and they make up a baseball team—a team like the Tigers, good enough to win everything in sight.

Al Kaline, who leads all active American League batters in seven categories and has hit more homers than any Tiger in history.

Mickey Lolich, who has won 47 games in the last two seasons and has more strikeouts than any other active pitcher in the league.

Ed Brinkman, who set five major league fielding records at shortstop in 1972.

Tigers all, and others, too, eager for greater glory in 1973.

You'll See Them Around

Familiar — by sight or sound — to Tiger Stadium fans, these are some of the people who keep things moving one way or another. It is they who stir the fans with rousing renditions of the National Anthem, amuse them with organ tunes between innings, or keep them informed on the public address system. They're all part of making Tiger Stadium the spot where "the name of the game is fun."

Joe Gentile's voice has been heard on public address system since 1965.

Robert Taylor's exciting National Anthem is regular feature at special events.

Pretty girls are a recent addition to Burns security force at the stadium.

Dan Greer, the versatile Tiger organist, really is "a man of a million melodies".

Vince Desmond introduces a young fan to Mickey Stanley, personable outfielder.

Lew Matlin, a man who wears many caps, has more than a few for Free Cap Day fans.

Remember the tiger who came to see the Tigers?
That sock is red for the Red Sox.

Grooming Tigers for Future

Careful scouting of untested prospects and patient grooming in the minor leagues keeps the supply of young talent flowing to Tiger Stadium.

It all begins at Tigertown, the excellent training base at Lakeland which was opened in 1953.

There are diamonds named for Tiger heroes Ty Cobb, Charley Gehring, Mickey Cochrane, Harry Heilmann and Hank Greenberg. There is a comfortable clubhouse, a cafeteria-recreation building, and a general office building. The most recent addition is a $400,000 dormitory, John Fetzer Hall, housing 200 men.

Adjacent to Tigertown is Marchant Stadium, splendid spring quarters of the major league Tigers, built at a cost of $600,000 in 1966 with a set of $160,000 lights for night play added in 1972.

(Exc. Sat. 2:15)	(Exc. Mon. 8:15)
Doubleheaders . 1:30	Twilighters . . . 5:30
Detroit on EDT starting April 29.

BARGAIN EVENTS

Every Monday night game at Tiger Stadium in 1973 will be Family Night with special prices. Head of the family pays $3.00 but other members of the family group are admitted for 50 cents each with seating in designated sections of the Upper Deck.

Every Saturday afternoon will be Ladies-Retirees Day when women, girls, boys 14 or under and all senior citizens will be admitted for 50 cents each with seating in the Upper Deck.

Although now among the older parks in the major leagues, Tiger Stadium remains one of the very best in which to view baseball, since every fan is right on top of the action on every play.

The location has been used for baseball since 1900 and some of the present grandstand was built in 1912, with the last remodeling in 1938. First called Bennett Park, for a catcher of note in Detroit's National League days, the name was changed to Navin Field in 1912, Briggs Stadium in 1938 and Tiger Stadium in 1961.

Official capacity is 54,220.

The Tigers in 1973 continue to hold the price line on tickets with box seats $4.00, reserved $3.00, grandstand $2.00 and bleachers $1.00.

The advance ticket office at Michigan and Trumbull is open from 9:00 to 6:00 daily during the season with tickets for every game on sale over the counter.

Tickets for all games also are on sale at Hudson's Ticket Service outlets: Downtown, Northland, Eastland, Southland, Pontiac, Oakland Mall, Flint/Genesee Valley, Toledo/Franklin

Park. Fans with Hudson's charge accounts can order tickets by phone (223-5100) and receive them by mail. Five-day notice is required and there is a 25-cent service charge.

Other agencies have tickets for night games, weekends and holidays. They are Coles Clothes, Battle Creek; Mullins, Flint; Sullivans, Grand Rapids; Fields, Jackson; Station WKZO, Kalamazoo; Munros, London, Ont.; Osmun's, Pontiac; Smokers Haven, Port Huron; Morleys, Saginaw; and Wansbroughs, Windsor.

Mail orders for tickets are filled the same day they are received. Send check or money order payable in U.S. currency to: Ticket Department, Tiger Stadium, Detroit, Mich. 48216.

Special attention is given to group orders with good locations assured. Write: Group Sales, Tiger Stadium, Detroit, Mich. 48216, or call Lew Matlin at (313) 962-4000 for complete information.

Recorded information on tickets and the schedule can be obtained by dialing (313) 963-9944.

RIDE A WINNER

People sit tall in a Clark lift truck. Clarklifts get tough jobs done quicker and easier than most. And they're for rent by the day. Try one. See why they're No. 1 in Tigertown.

"PEPSI-COLA" AND "PEPSI" ARE REGISTERED TRADEMARKS OF PepsiCo, INC.

You're looking at a big chunk of livin'.
Winning the big one, then sharing the excitement with close friends and cold Pepsi.
Pepsi-Cola's clean, crisp taste makes those slaps on the back feel even better.
And when it comes to cutting through thirst and putting back drive - Pepsi's in a league by itself.

You've got a lot to live. Pepsi's got a lot to give.
